JULIUS

FULIUS CÆSAR.

ACT I. SCENE. I. SCENE Rome.

Enter Flavius, Murellus, and certain Commoners over the Stage.

ENCE; Home you idle Creatures, get you home;

Is this a Holy-day? What know you

Being Mechanical, you ought not walk

Upon a labouring Day, without the

Of your Profession? Speak, what Trade art thou?

Car. Why Sir, a Carpenter.

Mur. Where is thy Leather Apron, and thy Rule? What dost thou with thy best Apparel on? You Sir, what Trade are you?

Cob. Truly Sir, in respect of a fine Workman, I am, but as you would fay, a Cobler.

Mur. But what Trade are thou? answer me directly. Cob. A Trade, Sir, that I hope I may use with a safe Conscience, which is indeed, Sir, a mender of bad Soals.

Flav. What Trade, thou Knave? thou naughty Knave, what Trade?

Cob. Nay, I befeech you, Sir, be not out with me; yet if you be out, Sir, I can mend you.

Mur. What mean'st thou by that? Mend me, thou fawcy Fellow? Cob.

Cob. Why, Sir, Cobble you.

Flav. Thou art a Cobler, art thou?

Cob. Truly Sir, all that I live by, is the Awl: I meddle with no Tradesman's Matters, nor Woman's Matters; but withal, I am indeed, Sir, a Surgeon to old Shoes; when they are in great Danger, I recover them. As proper Men as ever trod upon Neats-Leather, have gone upon my handy-work.

Flav. But wherefore art not in thy Shop to Day?
Why dost thou lead these Men about the Streets?

Cob. Truly Sir, to wear out their Shoes, to get my felf into more work. But indeed Sir, we make Holyday to see Casar, and to rejoyce in his Triumph.

Mur. Wherefore rejoyce!—What Conquest brings

What Tributaries follow him to Rome, To grace in Captive Bonds his Chariot Wheels? You Blocks, you Stones, you worse than senseless Things! O you hard Hearts! you cruel Men of Rome! Knew you not Pompey? many a time and oft Have you climb'd up to Walls and Battlements, To Towers and Windows, yea to Chimney Tops, Your Infants in your Arms, and there have fate The live-long Day with patient Expectation. To fee great Pompey pass the Streets of Rome ? And when you faw his Chariot but appear, Have you not made an Universal Shout, That Tyber trembled underneath his Banks To here the Replication of your Sounds, Made in his Concave Shores? And do you now put on your best Attire? And do you now cull out an Holy-day? And do you now ftrew Flowers in his way, That comes in Triumph over Pompey's Blood?

Run to your Houses, fall upon your Knees, Pray to the Gods, to intermit the Plague, That needs must light on this Ingratitude.

Flav. Go, go, good Countrymen, and for this Fault

Assemble all the poor Men of your fort,

Draw

Draw them to Tyber Bank, and weep your Tears Into the Channel, 'till the lowest Stream Do kiss the most exalted Shores of all. [Exeunt Commoners. See where their basest Mettle be not mov'd, They vanish tongue-ty'd in their Guiltiness. Go you down that way towards the Capitol, This way will I; Difrobe the Images, If you do find them deck'd with Ceremonies,

Mur. May we do fo?

You know it is the Feast of Lupercal. Flav. It is no matter, let no Images Be hung with Cafar's Trophies; I'll about, And drive away the Vulgar from the Streets; So do you too, where you perceive them thick, These growing Feathers pluckt from Casar's Wing, Will make him fly an ordinary Pitch, Who else would foar above the view of Men, And keep us all in fervile Fearfulness. Enter Cæsar, Antony for the Course, Calphurnia, Portia, Decius, Cicero, Brutus, Cassius, Caska, a Sooth sayer; after them Murellus and Flavius.

Cal. Calphurnia.

Cask. Peace ho, Cafar speaks.

Cal. Calphurnia.

Calp. Here, my Lord.

Caf. Stand you directly in Antonio's way, When he doth run his Courfe.—Antonio.

Ant. Cafar, my Lord.

Caf. Forget not in your Speed, Antonio, To touch Calphurnia; for our Elders fay, The Barren touched in this holy Chase, Shake off their steril Course.

Ant. I shall remember.

When Casar says, Do this; it is perform'd, Cass. Set on, and leave no Ceremony out. Sooth. Cafar.

Cas. Ha! who calls?

Cask. Bid every Noise be still; Peace yet again. Cass. Who is it in the Press that calls on me? I hear a Tongue, shriller than all the Musick,

Cry,

Cry, Cafar: Speak; Cafar is turn'd to hear. Sooth. Beware the Ides of March.

Cal. What Man is that?

Bru. A Sooth-sayer bids you beware the Ides of March.

Cas. Set him before me, let me see his Face.

Cas. Fellow, come from the Throng, look upon Casar. Cas. What say'st thou to me now? Speak once again. Sooth. Beware the Ides of March.

Cas. He is a Dreamer, let us leave him; Pass.

Exeunt. Manent Brutus and Cassius.

Cas. Will you go see the order of the Course? Bru. Not I.

Cas. I pray you do.

Bru. I am not Gamesom; I do lack some part Of that quick Spirit that is in Antony: Let me not hinder, Caffins, your Defires; I'll leave you.

Caf. Brutus, I do observe you now of late; I have not from your Eyes that Gentleness And shew of Love, as I was wont to have; You bear too stubborn, and too strange a Hand

Over your Friends, that love you.

Bru. Caffius, Be not deceiv'd: If I have veil'd my Look, I turn the Trouble of my Countenance Meerly upon my felf. Vexed Iam Of late, with Passions of some Difference, Conceptions only proper to my felf, Which give some Soil, perhaps, to my Behaviour: But let not therefore my good Friends be griev'd, Among which Number Cassius be you one, Nor construe any further my Neglect, Than that poor Brutus, with himself at War, Forgets the shews of Love to other Men.

Cas. Then Brutus, I have much mistook your Passion, By Means whereof, this Breast of mine hath buried Thoughts of great Value, worthy Cogitations. Tell me good Brutus, can you see your Face?

Bru. No, Cassius; for the Eye sees not it self, But by Reflection, by some other things.

Gas.

Cas. 'Tis just,
And it is very much lamented, Brutus,
That you have no such Mirrors, as will turn
Your hidden worthiness into your Eye,
That you might see your Shadow. I have heard
Where many of the best Respect in Rome,
Except immortal Casar, speaking of Brutus,
And groaning underneath this Age's Yoak,
Have wish'd that noble Brutus had his Eyes.

Bru. Into what Dangers would you lead me, Cassius?

That you would have me feek into my felf,

For that which is not in me?

Cas. Therefore, good Brutus, be prepar'd to hear:
And fince you know you cannot see your felf,
So well as by Reflection; I, your Glass,
Will modestly discover to your felf
That of your self, which yet you know not of.
And be not Jealous of me, gentle Brutus;
Were I a common Laughter, or did use
To stale with ordinary Oaths my Love
To every new Protestor; if you know
That I do fawn on Men, and hug them hard,
And after scandal them; or if you know,
That I profess my self in Banqueting
To all the Rout, then hold me dangerous.

Bru. What means this Shouting? I do fear, the People Chuse Casar for their King.

Cas. Ay, do you fear it?

as.

Then must I think you would not have it so.

Bru. I would not, Cassius; yet I love him well;
But wherefore do you hold me here so long?

What is it, that you would impart to me?

If it be ought toward the general Good,
Set Honour in one Eye, and Death i'th' other,
And I will look on both indisferently:
For let the Gods so speed me, as I love

The name of Honour, more than I fear Death.

cas. I know that Virtue to be in you, Brutus,
As well as I do know your outward Favour;

Well,

Well, Honour is the subject of my story: I cannot tell, what you and other Men Think of this Life; but for my fingle felf, I had as lief not be, as live to be In awe of fuch a thing as I my felf. I was born free as Cafar, fo were you, We both have fed as well, and we can both Endure the Winter's cold, as well as he. For once, upon a raw and gufty Day, The troubled Tyber chafing with his Shores, Cafar fays to me, Dar'ft thou Caffius now Leap in with me into this angry Flood, And fwim to yonder Point? Upon the word, Accoutred as I was, I plunged in, And bad him follow; fo indeed he did. The Torrent roar'd, and we did buffet it With lufty Sinews, throwing it afide, And stemming it with Hearts of Controversie, But e'er we could arrive the Point propos'd, Casar cry'd, Help me Cassius, or I fink. I, as Aneas, our great Ancestor, Did from the Flames of Troy, upon his Shoulder The old Anchifes bear, so, from the Waves of Tyber Did I the tired Cafar: And this Man Is now become a God, and Cassius is A wretched Creature, and must bend his Body, If Cafer carelesty but nod on him. He had a Feaver when he was in Spain, And when the fit was on him, I did mark How he did shake: 'Tis true, this God did shake, His coward Lips did from their Colour fly, And that same Eye, whose Bend doth awe the World, Did lose his Lustre; I did hear him groan: Ay, and that Tongue of his that bad the Romans Mark him, and write his Speeches in their Books. Alas! it cry'd --- Give me some drink, Titinius-As a fick Girl. Ye Gods, it doth amaze me, A Man of fuch a feeble temper should So get the Start of the majestick World, And bear the Palm alone. Shout. Flourifh.

Bru.

Bru. Another general Shout? I do believe, that these Applauses are For some new Honours that are heap'd on Cafar. Cas. Why Man, he doth bestride the narrow World Like a Coloffus, and we petty Men Walk under his huge Legs, and peep about To find our selves dishonourable Graves. Men at sometimes are Masters of their Fates: The Fault, dear Brutus, is not in our Stars, But in our felves, that we are Underlings. Brutus and Cafar. What should be in that Cafar? Why should that Name be sounded more than yours? Write them together; yours is as fair a Name; Sound them, it doth become the Mouth as well; Weigh them, it is as heavy; Conjure with 'em, Brutus will start a Spirit as foon as Cafar. Now in the Names of all the Gods at once, Upon what Meat doth this our Cafar feed, That he is grown fo great? Age, thou art sham'd; Rome, thou hast lost the breed of noble Bloods. When went there by an Age, fince the great Flood, But it was fam'd with more than with one Man? When could they fay, 'till now, that talk'd of Rome, That her wide Walls incompast but one Man? Now is it Rome indeed, and Room enough When there is in it but one only Man. O! you and I have heard our Fathers fay, There was a Brutus once, that would have brook'd Th' eternal Devil to keep his State in Rome, As eafily as a King.

Bru. That you do love me, I am nothing jealous; What you would work me to, I have some aim; How I have thought of this, and of these times I shall recount hereafter: For this present, I would not so (with Love I might entreat you) Be any further mov'd. What you have said, I will consider; what you have to say, I will with Patience hear, and find a Time Both meet to hear, and answer such high Things. Till then, my noble Friend, chew upon this;

Brusus

Brutus had rather be a Villager, Than to repute himself a Son of Rome Under such hard Conditions, as this Time Is like to lay upon us.

Cas. I am glad that my weak Words
Have struck but thus much shew of Fire from Brutus.

Enter Cæsar and his Train.

Bru. The Games are done, and Cafar is returning. Caf. As they pass by, pluck Caska by the Sleeve, And he will, after his sowre Fashion, tell you What hath proceeded worthy Note to Day.

Bru. I will do so: But look you Cassius,
The angry spot doth glow on Casar's Brow,
And all the rest look like a chidden Train;
Calphurnia's Cheek is pale, and Cicero
Looks with such Ferret, and such shery Eyes
As we have seen him in the Capitol,
Being crost in Conference with some Senators,

Cas. Casha will tell us what the Matter is.

Caf. Antonio. Ant. Cafar.

Cas. Let me have Men about me that are fat, Sleek-headed Men, and such as sleep a-Nights: Youd Cassius has a lean and hungry Look, He thinks too much; such Men are dangerous,

Ant. Fear him not, Cafar, he's not dangerous,

He is a noble Roman, and well given.

Caf. Would he were fatter; but I fear him not:
Yet if my Name were liable to Fear,
I do not know the Man I should avoid,
So foon as that spare Cassius. He reads much,
He is a great Observer, and he looks
Quite through the Deeds of Men. He loves no Plays,
As thou dost. Antony; he hears no Musick:
Seldom he smiles, and smiles in such a fort
As if he mock'd himself, and scorn'd his Spirit
That could be mov'd to smile at any thing.
Such Men as he be never at Hearts ease,
Whilst they behold a greater than themselves,
And therefore are they very dangerous.

I rather tell thee what is to be fear'd, Than what I fear; for always I am Cafar. Come on my right Hand, for this Ear is deaf, And tell me truly, what thou think'st of him.

[Exeunt Calar and his Train.

Cask. You pull'd me by the Cloak, would you speak with me?

Bru. Ay Caska, tell us what hath chanc'd to Day, That Cafar looks fo fad.

Cask. Why you were with him, were you not? Bru. I should not then ask Caska what had chanc'd.

Cask. Why, there was a Crown offer'd him; and being offer'd him, he put it by with the back of his Hand, thus, and then the People fell a shouting.

Bru. What was the second Noise for?

Cask. Why, for that too.

Caf. They shouted thrice: What was the last cry for?

Cask. Why, for that too.

Bru. Was the Crown offer'd him thrice?

Cask. Ay marry was't, and he put it by thrice, every time gentler than other; and at every putting by, mine honest Neighbours shouted.

Cal. Who offer'd him the Crown?

Cask. Why Antony.

Î

Bru. Tell us the manner of it, gentle Casha.

Cask. I can as well be hang'd as tell the Manner of it: It was meer Foolery, I did not mark it. I saw Mark Antony offer him a Crown, yet 'twas not a Crown neither, 'twas one of these Coronets; and, as I told you, he put it by once; but for all that, to my thinking, he would fain have had it. Then he offer'd it to him again: Then he put it by again; but, to my thinking, he was very loth to lay his Fingers off it. And then he offer'd it the third time; he put it the third time by; and still as he refus'd it, the Rabblement houted, and clapp'd their chopt Hands, and threw up their sweaty Night-caps, and uttered such a deal of stinking Breath, because Casar refus'd the Crown, that it had almost choaked Casar; for he swooned, and fell down at it: And for my own part, part, I durst not laugh, for fear of opening my Lips, and receiving the bad Air.

Cask. He fell down in the Market-place, and foam'd at Mouth, and was speechless.

Bru. 'Tis very like, he hath the Falling-Sickness.

Cas. No, Casar hath it not; but you and I,

And honest Caska; we have the Falling-Sickness.

Cask. I know not what you mean by that; but I am fure Casar fell down; if the tag-rag People did not claphim, and his him, according as he pleas'd, and displeas'd them, as they us'd to do the Players in the Theatre, I am no true Man.

Bru. What said he, when he came unto himself?

Cask. Marry, before he fell down, when he perceiv'd the common Herd was glad he refus'd the Crown, he pluckt me ope his Doublet, and offer'd them his Throat to cut; and I had been a Man of any Occupation, if I would not have taken him at his word, I would I might go to Hell among the Rogues; and so he fell. When he came to himself again, he said, If he had done, or said any thing amis, he desir'd their Worships to think it was his Insirmity. Three or four Wenches where I stood, cryed, Alas, good Soul — and forgave him with all their Hearts: But there's no heed to be taken of them if Casar had stabb'd their Mothers, they would have done no less.

Bru. And after that, he came, thus fad away.

Cask. Ay.

Cash. Did Cicero fay any thing?

Cas. To what effect?

Cash. Nay, and I tell you that, I'll ne'er look you i'th' Face again. But those that understood him, smil'd at one another, and shook their Heads; but for mine own part it was Greek to me. I could tell you more News too: Murellus and Flavius, for pulling Scarfs off Casar's Images, are put to Silence. Fare you well. There was more Foolery yet, if I could remember it.

Cas.

Cask. No, I am promis'd forth.

cas. Will you dine with me to Morrow?

Cask. Ay, if I be alive, and your Mind hold, and your Dinner be worth the eating.

Cas. Good, I will expect you.

Cask. Do fo: Farewel both. [Exit.

Bru. What a blunt Fellow is this grown to be? He was quick Mettle when he went to School.

of any bold or noble Enterprize.

However he puts on this tardy Form:
This Rudeness is a Sawce to his good Wit,
Which gives Men Stomach to digest his Words
With better Appetites.

Bru. And so it is: For this time I will leave you. To Morrow, if you please to speak with me, I will come home to you; or if you will, Come home to me, and I will wait for you.

Cas. I will do so: Till then, think of the World.

Exit Brutus,

Well Brutus, thou art Noble: Yet I fee Thy honourable Mettle may be wrought From that it is dispos'd, therefore 'tis meet That noble Minds keep ever with their likes: For who fo firm, that cannot be feduc'd? Casar doth bear me hard, but he loves Brutus. If I were Brutus now, and he were Cassius, He should not humour me. I will this Night, In feveral Hands, in at his Windows throw, As if they came from feveral Citizens, Writings, all tending to the great Opinion That Rome holds of his Name: Wherein obscurely Casar's Ambition shall be glanced at. And after this let Cafar feat him fure, For we will shake him, or worse Days endure. Enter Caska, his Sword drawn, Thunder and Lightning. and Cicero.

Cic. Good Even, Caska; brought you Casar home? Why are you Breathless, and why stare you so?

Cask.

Cask. Are not you mov'd, when all the sway of Earth Shakes, like a thing unfirm? O Cicero! I have seen Tempests, when the scolding Winds Have riv'd the knotty Oaks, and I have seen Th' ambitious Ocean swell, and rage, and foam, To be exalted with the threatning Clouds: But never 'till to Night, never 'till now, Did I go through a Tempest dropping Fire. Either there is a Civil Strife in Heav'n, Or else the World, too sawcy with the Gods, Incenses them to send Destruction.

Cic. Why, faw you any Thing more wonderful? Cask. A common Slave, you know him well by fight, Held up his left Hand, which did flame and burn, Like twenty Torches join'd; and yet his Hand, Not sensible of Fire, remain'd unscorch'd. Befides, I ha' not fince put up my Sword, Against the Capitol I met a Lion, Who glar'd upon me, and went furly by, Without annoying me. And there were drawn Upon a Heap, a hundred gastly Women, Transformed with their Fear, who swore, they saw Men, all in fire, walk up and down the Streets. And Yesterday, the Bird of Nightdid sit, Even at Noon-day, upon the Market place, Houting and shricking. When these Prodigies Do so conjointly meet, let not Men say, These are their Reasons, they are Natural: For I believe, they are protentous Things Unto the Climate, that they point upon.

Cic. Indeed, it is a strange disposed time:
But Men may construe Things after their Fashion,
Clean from the purpose of the Things themselves.

Comes Cafar to the Capitol to Morrow?

Cask. He doth: For he did bid Antonio

Send word to you, he would be there to Morrow.

Cic. Good Night then, Caska; this disturbed Sky
Is not to walk in.

Cask. Farewel, Cicero.

Enter Caffius.

caf. Who's there? Cask. A Roman.

Cas. Caska, by your Voice.

Cask. Your Ear is good. Cassins, what Night is this? Cas. A very pleasing Night to honest Men. Cask. Who ever knew the Heav'ns menace fo?

Caf. Those that have known the Earth so full of Faults. For my Part I have walk'd about the Streets, Submitting me unto the perilous Night; And thus unbraced, Caska, as you fee, Have bar'd my Bosom to the Thunder-stone: And when the cross blue Lightning feem'd to open

The Breast of Heav'n, I did present my felf, Even in the aim, and very flash of it.

Cask. But wherefore did you so much tempt the Heav'ns? It is the Part of Men to fear and tremble, When the most mighty Gods, by Tokens, send Such dreadful Heralds, to aftonish us.

Cas. You are dull, Caska; and those sparks of Life That should be in a Roman, you do want, Or else you use not; You look pale, and gaze, And put on fear, and cast your self in wonder. To fee the strange Impatience of the Heav'ns: But if you would confider the true Cause. Why all these Fires, why all these gliding Ghosts, Why Birds and Beafts, from Quality and Kind. Why old Men, Fools, and Children calculate; Why all these Things change from their Ordinance. Their Natures, and pre-formed Faculties, To monstrous Quality; why, you shall find, That Heav'n hath infus'd them with these Spirits, To make them Instruments of fear and warning, Unto some monstrous State. Now could I, Caska, name to thee a Man, Most like this dreadful Night, That Thunders, Lightens, opens Graves, and roars, As doth the Lyon in the Capitol;

A Man no mightier than thy felf, or me, In personal Action; yet prodigious grown.

nter

And

And fearful, as these strange Eruptions are.

Cask. 'Tis Casar that you mean; is it not, Cassius?

Cas. Let it be who it is: For Romans now

Have Thewes and Limbs like to their Ancestors;

But woe the while, our Fathers Minds are dead,

And we are govern'd with our Mothers Spirits,

Our Yoke and Sufferance shew us womanish.

Cask. Indeed, they fay, the Senators to Morrow Mean to establish Casar as a King:

And he shall wear his Crown by Sea, and Land,

In every Place, fave here in Italy.

Cass. I know where I will wear this Dagger then;
Cassius from Bondage will deliver Cassius.
Therein, ye Gods, you make the weak most strong;
Therein, ye Gods, you Tyrants do defeat:
Nor stony Tower, nor Walls of beaten Brass,
Nor Airless Dungeon, nor strong Links of Iron,
Can be retentive to the strength of Spirit:
But Life, being weary of these worldly Bars,
Never lacks Power to dismiss it self,
If I know this, know all the World besides;
That part of Tyranny, that I do bear,
I can shake off at Pleasure.

Cask. So can I:

So every Bondman in his own Hand bears

The Power to cancel his Captivity.

Cass. And why should Casar be a Tyrant then? Poor Man, I know he would not be a Wolf, But that he sees the Romans are but Sheep; He were no Lion, were not Romans Hinds. Those that with haste will make a mighty Fire, Begin it with weak Straws. What trash is Rome? What Rubbish, and what Offal? when it serves For the base Matter, to illuminate So vile a thing as Casar. But, oh Grief! Where hast thou led me? I, perhaps, speak this Before a willing Bondman: Then I know My Answer must be made. But I am arm'd, And Dangers are to me indifferent.

Cask.

Cask. You speak to Caska, and to such a Man, That is no flearing Tell-tale. Hold, my Hand: Be factious for redress of all these Griefs, And I will set this Foot of mine as far, As who goes farthest.

Cas. There's a Bargain made.

Now know you, Caska, I have mov'd already Some certain of the noblest-minded Romans,
To under-go, with me, an Enterprize,
Of honourable dangerous Consequence;
And I do know, by this they stay for me
In Pompey's Porch; for now this fearful Night,
There is no stir, or walking in the Streets,
And the Complexion of the Element
Is Feav'rous, like the Work we have in Hand,

Most bloody, fiery, and most terrible.

Enter Cinna:

Cask. Stand close a while, for here comes one in haste.

Cas. 'Tis Cinna, I do know him by his Gate,

He is a Friend. Cinna, where haste you so?

Cin. To find out you: Who's that Metellus Cimber?

Cas. No, it is Caska, one incorporate

To our Attempts. Am I not staid for. Cinna?

Cin. I am glad on't. What a fearful Night is this?

There's two or three of us have seen strange Sights.

Cas. Am I not staid for ? tell me.

Cin. Yes; you are.

isk.

O Cassius! If you could but win the noble Brutus

Cas. Be you content. Good Cinna take this Paper, And look you lay it in the Prætor's Chair, Where Brutus may but find it; and throw this In at his Window; set this up with Wax Ilpon old Brutus's Statue? All this done, Repair to Pompey's Porch, where you shall find us, Is Decius Brutus, and Trebonius there?

Cin. All, but Metellus Cimber, and he's gone To feek you at your House. Well, I will hie, And so bestow these Papers as you bade me. Cas. That done, repair to Pompey's Theatre. [Exit Cinna. Come Caska, you and I will, yet, e'er Day, See Brutus at his House; three Parts of him Is ours already, and the Man entire, Upon the next Encounter, yields him ours.

Cask. O, he fits high in all the Peoples Hearts: And that which would appear Offence in us, His Countenance, like richest Alchymy, Will change to Virtue, and to Worthiness.

Cas. Him, and his Worth, and our great need of him, You have right well conceited; let us go, For it is after Mid-night, and e're Day.

We will awake him, and be sure of him.

[Exeunt.]

ACT. II. SCENE. I.

SCENE. A Garden.

Enter Brutus.

I cannot, by the progress of the Stars,
Give guess how near to Day — Lucius, I say!
I would it were my Fault to sleep so soundly.
When Lucius, when? awake, I say! what, Lucius!

Enter Lucius.

Luc. Call'd you, my Lord ?

Bru. Get me a Taper in my Study, Lucius: When it is lighted, come and call me here.

Luc. I will, my Lord.

Bru. It must be by his Death: And for my part,

I know no personal Cause to spurn at him,

But for the general. He would be crown'd—

How that might change his Nature there's the Question.

It is the bright Day that brings forth the Adder,

And that craves wary walking: Crown him—that—

And then I grant we put a Sting in him,

That at his will he may do danger with.

Th'

Th' abuse of Greatness, is, when it disjoins Remorfe from Power: And to speak truth of Casar, I have not known, when his Affections sway'd. More than his Reason. But 'tis a common Proof, That Lowliness is young Ambition's Ladder, Whereto the Climber upward turns his Face; But when he once attains the upmost Round, He then unto the Ladder turns his Back, Looks in the Clouds, scorning the Base Degrees By which he did afcend: So Cafar may, Then, lest he may, prevent. And fince the Quarrel Will bear no colour, for the thing he is, Fashion it thus; that what he is augmented, Would run to these, and these Extremities: And therefore think him as a Serpent's Egg, Which hatch'd, would, as his kind, grow mischievous, And kill him in the Shell.

Enter Lucius.

Luc. The Taper burneth in your Closet, Sir: Searching the Window for a Flint, I found This Paper, thus feal'd up, and I am fure, It did not lye there, when I went to Bed.

Gives him the Letter.

Bru. Get you to Bed again, it is not Day. Is not to morrow, Boy, the first of March?

Luc. I know not, Sir.

Bru. Look in the Kalendar, and bring me word.

Luc. I will, Sir.

Bru. The Exhalations, whizzing in the Air, Give fo much light; that I may read by them.

Opens the Letter, and reads.

Brutus, thou fleep'ft; awake and fee thy fetf: shall Rome, ____ speak, strike, redress.

Brutus, thou fleep'ft : Awake.

Such Instigations have been often dropt,

Where I have took them up:

shall Rome Thus must I piece it out, Shall Rome stand under one Man's awe? What, Rome? My Ancestors did from the Streets of Rome The Tarquin drive, when he was call'd a King.

Speak,

Enter Lucius.

Luc. Sir, March is wasted fifteen Days. [Knock within.

Bru. Tis good. Go to the Gate. some body knocks:

Since Cassius first did whet me against Casar,

I have not slept.

Between the acting of a dreadful thing, And the first motion, all the Interim is Like a Phantasma, or a hideous Dream. The Genius, and the mortal Instruments, Are then in Council; and the state of Man, Like to a little Kingdom, suffers then, The nature of an Insurrection.

Enter Lucius.

Luc. Sir, 'tis your Brother Cassius at the Door, Who doth desire to see you.

Bru. Is he alone?

Luc No. Sir, there are more with him.

Bru. Do you know them?

And half their Faces buried in their Cloaths, That by no means I may discover them,

By any mark of favour.

[Exit Lucius.

Bru. Let them enter.

They are the Faction. O Conspiracy!

Sham'st thou to shew thy dang rous Brow by Night,

When Evils are most free? O then, by Day

Where wilt thou find a Cavern dark enough,

To mask thy monstrous Visage! Seek none, Conspiracy,

Hide it in Smiles and Affability:

For if thou patch, thy native Semblance on, Not Erebus it felf were dim enough,

To hide thee from Prevention.

Enter Cassius, Caska, Decius, Cinna, Metellus, and Trebonius.

Good Morrow, Brutus, do we trouble you?

Bru.

AA II. JULIUS CESAR. 19

Bru. I have been up this hour, awake all Night: Know I these Men, that come along with you? [Aside.

Cas. Yes, every Man of them; and no man here But honours you: And every one doth wish, You had but that Opinion of your self, Which every noble Roman bears of you.

This is Trebonius.

cy,

and

Bru. He is welcome hither.

Cas. This, Decius Brutus. Bru. He is welcome too.

Cas. This, Caska; this, Cinna;

And this Metellus Cimber.

Bru. They are all welcome.

What watchful Cares do interpose themselves,

Betwixt your Eyes and Night?

Cas. Shall I intreat a word? [They whisper. Dec. Here lies the East: Doth not the Day break here?

Cask. No. Cin. O pardon, Sir, it doth, and you grey Lines,

That fret the Clouds, are Messengers of Day.

Cask. You shall confess that you are both deceived:

Here as I point my Sword, the Sun arises,

Which is a great way growing on the South,

Weighing the youthful Season of the Year.

Some two Months hence, up higher toward the North

He first presents his fire, and the high East

Stands as the Capitol, directly here.

Bru. Give me your Hands all over, one by one.

Cas. And let us swear our Resolution.

Bru. No, not an Oath: If not the Face of Men,
The Sufferance of our Souls, The Time's abuse,
If these be Motives weak, break off betimes,
And ev'ry Man hence, to his idle Bed:
So let high-sighted Tyranny range on,
'Till each Man drop by Lottery. But if these,
As I am sure they do, bear Fire enough
To kindle Cowards, and to steel with Valour
The melting Spirits of Women; then, Countrymen,
What need we any spur, but our own Cause,
To prick us to redress? What other Bond,

Then

Then fecret Romans, that have spoken the word, And will not palter? And what other Oath, Than Honesty to Honesty engag'd, That this shall be, or we will fall for it. Swear Priests, and Cowards and Men cautelous, Old feeble Carrions, and fuch fuffering Souls That welcome wrongs: Unto bad Caufes, fwear Such Creatures as Men doubt; but do not stain The even Virtue of our Enterprize, Nor th' insuppressive Mettle of our Spirits, To think, that or our Cause, or our Performance, Did need an Oath. When every drop of Blood That every Roman bears, and nobly bears, Is guilty of a feveral Bastardy. If he doth break the smallest Particle Of any promise, that hath past from him. Cal. But what of Cicero? shall we sound him I think he will stand very strong with us. Cask. Let us not leave him out.

Cin. No, by no means.

Met. O let us have him, for his Silver Hairs
Will purchase us a good Opinion,

And buy Mens Voices, to commend our Deeds: It shall be faid, his Judgment rul'd our Hands; Our Youths, and Wildness, shall no whit appear, But all be buried in his Gravity.

Bru. O name him not: let us not break with him, For he will never follow any thing

That other Men begin.
Cas. Then leave him out.

Cask. Indeed, he is not fit.

Dec. Shall no Man else be touch'd, but only Casar?

Cas. Decius, well urg'd; I think it is not meet,

Mark Antony, so well belov'd of Casar,

Should out-live Casar: we shall find of him

A shrewd Contriver. And you know, his means,

If he improve them, may well stretch so far,

As to annoy us all; which to prevent,

Let Antony and Casar fall together.

Bru. Our Course will seem too bloody, Caius Cassius

To cut the Head off, and then hack the Limbs; Like wrath in Death, and Envy afterwards: For Antony is but a Limb of Cafar. Let's be Sacrifices, but not Butchers, Cassius: We all stand up against the Spirit of Casar, And in the Spirit of Men, there is no Blood: D that we then could come by Casar's Spirits, And not dismember Casar! but, alas! Cafar must bleed for it. And, gentle Friends, Let's kill him boldly, but not wrathfully; Let's crave him, as a Dish fit for the Gods, Not hew him, as a Carkass fit for Hounds; And let our Hearts, as subtle Masters do, Stir up their Servants to an act of Rage, And after feem to chide them. This shall make Dur purpose necessary, and not envious: Which so appearing to the common Eyes, We shall be call'd Purgers, not Murderers. And for Mark Antony, think not of him ; For he can do no more than Cafar's Arm, When Cafar's Head is off.

Caf. Yet I fear him; or in the ingrafted Love he bears to Cafar-

Bru . Alas, good Caffius. do not think of him : f he love Cafar, all that he can do s to himfelf, take thought, and die for Cafar. And that were much he should; for he is giv'n To Sports, to Wildness, and much Company.

Treb. There is no fear in him; let him not die, or he will live, and laugh at this hereafter. [Clock strikes.]

Bru. Peace, count the Clock. Cas. The Clock hath stricken three.

Treb. 'Tis time to part.

Fins

To

Cas. But it is doubtful yet,

Whether Casar will come forth to Day, or no: for he is Superstitious grown of late. Quite from the main Opinion he held once, of Fantasie, of Dreams, and Ceremonies:

may be, these apparent Prodigies,

The

Exem

The unaccustom'd terror of this Night, And the persuasion of his Augurers, May hold him from the Capitol to Day.

Dec. Never fear that; if he be so resolv'd, I can o'er-sway him; for he loves to hear, That Unicorns may be betray'd with Trees, And Bears with Classes, Elephants with Holes, Lions with Toils, and Men with Flatterers. But when I tell him he hates Flatterers, He says, he does; being then most flattered, Let me work:

For I can give his Humour the true bent; And I will bring him to the Capitol.

Cas. Nay, we will all of us be there to fetch him. Bru. By the eighth hour, is that the uttermost? Cin. Be that the uttermost, and fail not then.

Met. Caius Ligarius doth bear Casar hatred. Who rated him for speaking well of Pompey; I wonder none of you have thought of him.

Bru. Now good Metellus go along by him: He loves me well; and I have giv'n him Reasons, Send him but hither, and I'll fashion him.

Cas. The Morning comes upon's; we'll leave you, Br. And Friends disperse your selves; but all remember, What you have said, and shew your selves true Roman Bru. Good Gentlemen, look fresh and merrily, Let not our Looks put on our Purposes, But bear it as our Roman Actors do. With untir'd Spirits, and formal Constancy; And so good Morrow to you every one.

Manet Brutus.

Boy! Lucius! fast asleep? It is no matter,
Enjoy thy Honey-heavy-dew of Slumber:
Thou hast no Figures, nor no Fantasies,

Which busie Care draws in the Brains of Men; Therefore thou sleep'st so sound.

Enter Portia.

Por. Brutus, my Lord!
Bru. Portia what mean you? Wherefore rife you now

It is not for your Health thus to commit

Your weak Condition to the raw cold Morning. Por. Nor for yours neither. You've ungently, Brutus, Stole from my Bed : And yesternight at Supper You fuddenly arose, and walk'd about, Musing, and fighing with your Arms a-cross: And when I ask'd you what the matter was, You star'd upon me with ungentle Looks. I urg'd you further, then you scratch'd your Head, And too impatiently stamp'd with your Foot: Yet I infifted, yet you answer'd not, But with an angry wafture of your Hand, Gave fign for me to leave you: So I did, Fearing to strengthen that Impatience, Which feem'd too much inkindled; and withal, Hoping it was but an effect of Humour, Which sometime hath his Hour with every Man. It will not let you eat, nor talk, nor fleep; And could it work fo much upon your Shape, As it hath much prevail'd on your Condition, I should not know you, Brutus. Dear, my Lord. Make me acquainted with your cause of Grief. Bru. I am not well in Health, and that is all.

Bru. I am not well in Health, and that is all.

Por. Brutus is wife, and were he not in Health,

He would embrace the means to come by it.

, Bri

omai

er,

Bru. Why fo I do: Good Portia go to Bed. Por. Is Brutus fick? And is it Physical To walk unbraced, and fuck up the Humours Of the dank Morning? What, is Brutus fick? And will he steal out of his wholsome Bed, To dare the vile Contagion of the Night? And tempt the Rheumy and unpurged Air, To add unto his Sickness ? No, my Brutus, You have some fick Offence within your Mind, Which, by the Right and Virtue of my place, I ought to know of: And upon my Knees, I charm you, by my once commended Beauty, By all your Vows of Love, and that great Vow Which did incorporate and make us one, That you unfold to me, your felf, your half; You Why you are heavy, and what Men, to Night,

Have

Have had refort to you; for here have been some fix or feven, who did hide their Faces Even from darkness.

Bru. Kneel not, gentle Portia.

Por. I should not need, if you were gentle Brutus. Within the Bond of Marriage, tell me, Brutus, Is it excepted, I should know no Secrets
That appertain to you? Am I your self,
But as it were in Sort, or Limitation?
To keep with you at Meals, Comfort your Bed,
And talk to you sometimes? Dwell I but in the Suburbs
Of your good Pleasure? If it be no more,
Portia is Brutus Harlot, not his Wife.

Bru. You are my true and honourable Wife, As dear to me, as are the ruddy drops

That wifit my fad Heart.

Por. If this were true, then should I know this Secret. I grant I am a Woman; but withal, A Woman that Lord Brutus took to Wife: I grant I am a Woman, but withal, A Woman well reputed: Cato's Daughter. Think you, I am no stronger than my Sex, Being so sather'd, and so husbanded? Tell me your Counsels, I will not disclose them: I have made strong Proof of my Constancy, Giving my self a voluntary Wound Here, in the Thigh: Can I bear that with patience, And not my Husband's Secrets?

Bru. O ye Gods!

Render me worthy of this Noble Wife.

Hark, hark, one knocks: Portia, go in a while,

And, by and by, thy Bosom shall partake

The Secrets of my Heart.

All my Engagements I will construe to thee,

All the Charactery of my sad Brows:

Leave me with haste.

[Exit Portia.

Enter Lucius and Ligarius.

Lucius, who's that knocks?
Luc. Here is a fick Man that would speak with you

Bru. Caius Ligarius, that Metellus spake of. Boy, stand aside. Caius Ligarius! how?

Cai. Vouchsafe good Morrow from a feeble Tongue.

Bru. O what a time have you chose out, brave Cains,

To wear a Kerchief? Would you were not fick. Cai. I am not fick, if Brutus have in Hand

Any exploit worthy the name of Honour.

Bru. Such an Exploit have I in Hand, Ligarius

Had you an healthful Ear to hear of it.

There discard my Sickness. Soul of Rome,
Brave Son, deriv'd from honourable Loins,
Thou like an Exorcist, hast conjur'd up
My mortified Spirit. Now bid me run,
And I will strive with things impossible,
Yet get the better of them. What's to do?

Bru. A piece of work, that will make fick Men whole. Cai. But are not some whole that we must make fick. Bru, That must we also. What it is, my Cains,

I shall unfold to thee, as we are going,

To whom it must be done.

Cai. Set on your Foot, And with a Heart new fir'd, I follow you,

To do I know not what: But it sufficeth That Brutus leads me on.

Bru. Follow me then.

[Thunder.]

SCENE II. Cæfar's Palace.

Thunder and Lightning. Enter Julius Cafar in his Night-

Caf. Nor Heav'n, nor Earth, have been at Peace to Night;

Thrice hath Calphurnia in her Sleep cry'd out; Help, ho; they murder Casar. Who's within? Enter a Servant.

Ser. My Lord.

Cas. Go, bid the Priests do present Sacrifice, And bring me their Opinions of Success.

Ser. I will my Lord.

Enter Calphurnia.

Cal. What mean you, Cafar? Think you to walk You shall not stir out of your House to Day. (forth? Cass. Casar shall forth; the things that threatned me, Ne'er lookt but on my Back. When they shall see The Face of Casar, they are vanished.

Cal. Casar, I never stood on Ceremonies,
Yet now they fright me. There is one within,
Besides the things that we have heard and seen,
Recounts most horrid Sights seen by the Watch.
A Lioness hath whelped in the Streets;
And Graves have yawn'd and yielded up their Dead;
Fierce siery Warriors sight upon the Clouds,
In Ranks and Squadrons, and right form of War,
Which drizzled Blood upon the Capitol:
The noise of Battle hurried in the Air,
Horses did neigh, and dying Men did groan.
And Ghosts did shriek and squeal about the Streets.
O Casar! these things are beyond all use,
And I do fear them.

Cas. What can be avoided,
Whose end is purpos'd by the mighty Gods?
Yet Casar shall go forth. For these Predictions
Are to the World in general, as to Casar.

Cal. When Beggars die there are no Comets seen,
The Heav ns themselves blaze forth the Death of Princes,
Cas. Cowards die many times before their Deaths,
The Valiant never taste of Death but once:

Of all the Wonders that I yet have heard,
It feems to me most strange that Men should fear,
Seeing that Death, a necessary End,
Will come, when it will come.

Enter a Servant.

What fay the Augurers?

Ser. They would not have you to stir forth to Day.

Plucking the Entrails of an Offering forth,

They could not find a Heart within the Beast.

Cass. The Gods do this in shame of Cowardise:

Casar should be a Beast without a Heart,

If he should stay at Home to Day for fear:

No.

alk

No.

No, Cafar shall not; Danger knows full well, That Cafar is more dangerous than he. We heard two Lions litter'd in one Day, And I the elder and more terrible; And Cafar shall go forth.

Cal. Alas, my Lord,

Your Wisdom is consum'd in Considence:
Do not go forth to Day; call it my Fear,
That keeps you in the House, and not your own.
We'll send Mark Antony to the Senate-House,
And he will say you are not well to Day:
Let me, upon my Knee, prevail in this.

Caf. Mark Antony shall say I am not well, And for thy Humour, I will stay at home.

Enter Decius,

Here's Decius Brutus, he shall tell them so.

Dec. Casar, all hail! Good-Morrow, worthy Casar,
I come to fetch you to the Senate-House.

Caf. And you are come in very happy time, To bear my Greeting to the Senators, And tell them that I will not come to Day: Cannot is false, and that I dare not, falser; I will not come to Day; tell them so, Decius. Cal. Say he is Sick.

Caf. Shall Cafar fend a Lie?

Have I in Conquest stretcht mine Arm so far, To be afraid to tell Grey-beards the truth? Decius, go tell them Casar will not come.

Dec. Most mighty Cafar let me know some Cause,

Lest I be laught at when I tell them fo.

Caf. The Cause is in my Will, I will not come; That is enough to satisfie the Senate.

But for your private Satisfaction,

Because I love you, I will let you know. Calphurnia here, my Wife, stays me at home:

She dreamt last night she saw my Statue, Which like a Fountain, with an hundred Spouts, Did run pure Blood; and many lusty Romans Came Smiling, and did bathe their Hands in it:

And these does the apply, for Warnings and Portents,

And Evils imminent; and on her Knee Hath begg'd that I will stay at home to Day.

Dec. This Dream is all amiss interpreted. It was a Vision fair and fortunate: Your Statue spouting Blood in many Pipes, In which fo many smiling Romans bath'd. Signifies that from you great Rome shall suck Reviving Blood, and that great Men shall press For Tinctures, Stains, Relicks, and Cognizance. This, by Calphurnia's Dream is fignified.

Cal. And this way have you well expounded it. Dec. I have, when you have heard what I can fay; And know it now, the Senate have concluded To give this Day a Crown to mighty Cafar. If you shall send them Word you will not come, Their Minds may change. Befides, it were a mock Apt to be render'd, for some one to fay, Break up the Senate 'till another time, When Cafar's Wife shall meet with better Dreams: If Cafar hide himself, shall they not whisper, Lo, Cafar is afraid!

Pardon me, Cafar, for my dear dear Love. To your Proceeding, bids me tell you this:

And Reason to my Love is liable.

Caf. How foolish do your Fears seem now, Calphurnia? I am ashamed I did yield to them.

Give me my Robe, for I will go.

Enter Brutus, Ligarius, Metellus, Caska, Trebonius, Cinna, and Publius.

And look where Publius is come to fetch me.

Pub. Good-Morrow, Cafar. Cas. Welcome, Publius.

What Brutus, are you stir'd so early too? Good-Morrow, Caska: Caius Ligarius, Casar was ne'er so much your Enemy, As that same Ague which hath made you lean.

What is't a Clock?

Bru. Cafar, 'tis strucken eight.

Cas. I thank you for your Pains and Courtesie.

Enter Antony.

See Antony, that revels long a-nights,
Is notwithstanding up. Good-Morrow, Antony.

Ant. So to most noble Casar.

Cas. Bid them prepare within:

I am to blame to be thus waited for.

Now Cinna, now Metellus; what, Trebonius!

I have an Hour's talk in store for you,

Remember that you call on me to Day,

Be near me, that I may remember you.

Treb. Cafar, I will; and so near will I be, [Afide. That your best Friends shall wish I had been further. Cas. Good Friends go in, and taste some Wine with And we, like Friends, will straightway go together. (me,

Bru. That every like is not the same, O Casar, The Heart of Brutus earns to think upon. [Excunt

SCENE III. The Street.

Enter Artemidorus reading a Paper.

Cæsar, beware of Brutus, take heed of Cassius, come not near Caska, have an Eye to Cinna, trust not Trebonius, mark well Metellus Cimber. Decius Brutus loves thee not; thou hast wrong'd Caius Ligarius. There is but one Mind in all these Men, and it is bent against Cæsar. If thou beest not Immortal, look about thee: Security gives way to Conspiracy. The mighty Gods defend thee.

Thy Lover Artemidorus.

Here will I stand, 'till Casar pass along,
And as a Suitor will I give him this:

My Heart laments, that Virtue cannot live
Out of the teeth of Emulation.

If thou read this, O Casar, thou may'st live;
If not, the Fates with Traitors do contrive. [Exit.

Enter Portia and Lucius.

Por. I prithee, Boy, run to the Senate-house, Stay not to answer me, but get thee gone, Why dost thou stay?

Luc, To know my Errand, Madam.

nius,

Por.

Por. I would have had thee there, and here again, Ere I can tell thee what thou shouldst do there-O Constancy, be strong upon my side, Set a huge Mountain 'tween my heart and tongue; I have a Man's Mind, but a Woman's Might: How hard it is for Women to keep Council! Art thou here yet ?

Luc. Madam, what should I do? Run to the Capitol, and nothing elfe? And so return to you, and nothing else?

Por. Yes, bring me word, Boy, if thy Lord look welf, For he went fickly forth: and take good note, What Cafar doth, what Suitors press to him.

Hark Boy! what noise is that? Luc. I hear none, Madam.

Por. Prithee listen well:

I heard a buftling Rumour like a Fray, And the Wind brings it from the Capitol.

Luc. Sooth, Madam, I hear nothing. Enter Artemidorus.

Por. Come hither Fellow, which way hast thou been?

Art. At mine own House, good Lady.

Por. What is't a Clock?

Art. About the ninth Hour, Lady.

Por. Is Cafar yet gone to the Capitol?

Art. Madam, not yet, I go to take my stand,

To see him pass on to the Capitol?

Por. Thou hast some Suit to Casar, hast thou not?

Art. That I have, Lady, if it will please Casar To be so good to Casar, as to hear me.

I shall befeech him to defend himself.

Por. Why, know'st thou any harm's intended towards (him? Art. None that I know will be,

Much that I fear may chance.

Good-Morrow to you. Here the Street is narrow: The throng that follows Cafar at the Heels,

Of Senators, of Prætors, common Suitors. Will crowd a feeble Man almost to Death: I'll get me to a place more void, and there Speak to great Cafar as he comes along.

Exit. Por.

Por. I must go in—Aye me! how weak a Thing The Heart of Woman is; O Brutus! The Heav'ns speed thee in thine Enterprize. Sure the Boy heard me: Brutus hath a Suit That Casar will not grant. O, I grow faint: Run, Lucius, and commend me to my Lord, Say I am merry; come to me again, And bring me word what he doth say to thee. [Exeunt.]

ACT. III. SCENE I.

SCENE. The Capitol.

Flourish. Enter Cæsar, Brutus, Cassius, Caska, Decius; Metellus, Trebonius, Cinna, Antony, Lepidus, Artemidorus, Popilius, and the Soothsayers.

Cas. THE Ides of March are come.
South. Ay, Casar, but not gone

Art. Hail, Cafar: Read this Schedule.

Dec. Trebonius doth defire you to o'er-read,

At your best leisure, this his humble Suit.

Art. O Casar, read mine first; for mines a Suit.

That touches Casar nearer. Read it, great Casar.

Cas. What touches us our felf, shall be last ferv'd.

Art. Delay not, Cafar, read it instantly.

Cas. What, is the Fellow mad?

wit.

Por.

Cas. What, urge you your Petitions in the Street?

Pop. I wish your Enterprize to Day may thrive:

Caf. What Enterprize, Popilius?

Pop. Fare you well.

Bru. What faid Popilius Lena?

Cas. He wish'd to Day our Enterprize might thrive:

I fear our Purpose is discovered.

Bru. Look how he makes to Casar; mark him. Cas. Caska, be sudden, for we fear Prevention.

Brutus, what shall be done? If this be known,

Cassius

Cassius or Casar never shall turn back, For I will slay my felf.

Bru. Caffius be constant:

Popilius Lena speaks not of our Purposes,

For look he smiles, and Casar doth not change.

Cas. Trebonius knows his time; for look you, Brutus,

He draws Mark Antony out of the way.

Dec. Where is Metellus Cimber ? Let him go,

And presently preser his Suit to Casar.

Bru. He is addrest; press near, and second him. Cin. Caska, you are the first that rears your Hand. Cas. Are we all ready? What is now amiss,

That Cafar and his Senate must redress?

Met. Most high, most mighty, and most puissant Casar, Metellus Cimber throws before thy Seat [Kneeling.

An humble Heart.

Cass. I must prevent thee, Cimber;
These Couchings, and these lowly Curtesies
Might fire the Blood of ordinary Men,
And turn Pre-Ordinance, and first Decree;
Into the lane of Children. Be not fond,
To think, that Casar bears such Rebel Blood,
That will be thaw'd from the true Quality,
With that which melteth Fools; I mean sweet Words,
Low-crooked Curtisies, and base Spaniel Fawning.
Thy Brother by Decree is banished;
If thou dost bend, and pray, and fawn for him,
I spurn thee like a Cur out of my way.
Know, Casar doth not wrong, nor without Cause
Will he be satisfied.

Met. Is there no Voice more worthy than my own, To found more fweetly in great Cæsar's Ear, For the repealing of my banish'd Brother?

Bru. I kiss thy Hand, but not in Flattery, Casar; Desiring thee, that Publius Cimber may

Have an immediate Freedom of Repeal.

Cas. Pardon, Casar, Casar Pardon;
As low as to thy Foot doth Cassius fall,
To beg Enfranchisement for Publius Cimber.

Cas. I could be well mov'd, if I were as you; If I could pray to move, Prayers would move me: But I am constant as the Northern Star, Of whose true, fixt, and resting Quality, There is no fellow in the Firmament; The Skies are painted with unnumbred sparks, They are all Fire, and every one doth shine; But there's but one in all doth hold his place. So, in the World, 'tis furnish'd well with Men, And Men are Flesh and Blood, and apprehensive; Yet in the number, I do know but one That unassailable holds on his Rank, Unshak'd of Motion: and that I am he, Let me a little shew it, even in this; That I was constant Cimber should be banish'd, And constant do remain to keep him so.

Dec. Great Cafar-

Cas. Do not, Brutus, bootless kneel.

Cask. Speak Hands for me. [They Stab Cafar.

Cas. Et tu Brute—— Then fall Casar.

Cas. Some to the common Pulpits, and cry out,

Liberty, Freedom, and Enfranchisement.

Bru. People and Senators, be not affrighted; Fly not, stand still, Ambition's Debt is paid.

Cask. Go to the Pulpit Brutus.

Dec. And Cassius too. Bru. Where's Publius?

Cin. Here, quite confounded with this Mutiny.

Met. Stand fast together, lest some Friend of Casar's Should chance—

Bru. Talk not of standing. Publius, good Cheer, There is no harm intended to your Person, Nor to no Roman else; so tell them, Publius.

Rushing on us, should do your Age some Mischief.

Bru. Do fo, and let no Man abide this Deed, But we the Doers.

Enter Trebonius.

Cal. Where is Antony?

Tre. Fled to his House amaz'd.

Men, Wives, and Children, stare, cry out, and run,

As it were Doom's-day.

Bru. Fates, we will know your Pleasures; That we shall die, we know; 'tis but the time And drawing Days out, that Men stand upon.

Cask. Why he that cuts off twenty Years of Life,

Cuts off fo many Years of fearing Death.

Bru. Grant that, and then is Death a Benefit. So are we Casar's Friends, that have abridg'd His time of fearing Death. Stoop Romans, stoop, And let us bathe our Hands in Cafar's Blood, Up to the Elbows, and befmear our Swords; Then walk we forth even to the Market-place, And waving our red Weapons o'er our Heads, Let's all cry Peace! Freedom! and Liberty.

Cas. Stoop then, and wash-How many Ages hence [Dipping their Swords in Cafar's Blood.

Shall this our lofty Scene be acted over,

In States unborn, and Accents yet unknown?

Bru, How many times shall Cafar bleed in sport,

That now on Pompey's Basis lyes along, No worthier than the Duft?

Cas. So oft as that shall be,

So often shall the Knot of us be call'd,

The Men that give their Country Liberty.

Dec. What, what, shall we forth?

Cal. Ay, every Man away.

Brutus shall lead, and we will grace his Heels With the most bold, and the best Hearts of Rome.

Enter a Servant.

Bru. Soft, who comes here? a Friend of Antony's. Ser. Thus, Brutus, did my Master bid me Kneel; Thus did Mark Antony bid me fall down, Kneeling. And being prostrate, thus he bade me say, Brutus is Noble, Wife, Valiant and Honest;

'Cæsar.

Cæsar was Mighty, Bold, Royal, and Loving; Say, I love Brutus, and I honour him; Say, I fear'd Cæsar, honour'd him, and lov'd him. If Brutus will vouchsafe, that Antony May safely come to him, and be resolv'd How Cæsar hath deserv'd to lye in Death, Mark Antony shall not love Cæsar dead So well as Brutus living; but will follow The Fortunes and Assairs of noble Brutus, Thorough the hazards of this untrod State, With all true Faith. So says my Master Antony.

Bru. Thy Master is a wise and valiant Roman, I never thought him worse. Tell him, so please him come unto this place,

Serv. I'll fetch him presently, [Exit Servant.]

Bru. I know that we shall have him well to Friend.

Cas. I wish we may; but yet I have a mind

That fears him much: and my missiving still

That fears him much; and my milgiving still Falls shrewdly to the purpose.

Bru. But here comes Antony.

Welcome Mark Antony;

Ant. O mighty Cafar! dost thou lye fo low? Are all thy Conquests, Glories, Triumphs, Spoils, Shrunk to this little Measure?——Fare thee well. I know not Gentlemen, what you intend, Who elfe must be let blood, who elfe is rank; If I my felf, there is no Hour fo fit As Cafar's Deaths Hour; 'nor no Instrument Of half that worth, as these your Swords, made rich With the most noble Blood of all this World. I do beseech ye, if you bear me hard, Now, whilst your purpled Hands do reek and smoak, Fulfil your Pleasure. Live a thousand Years, I shall not find my felf so apt to die: No place will please me so, no mean of Death, As here by Calar, and by you cut off, The Choice and Master Spirits of this Age. Bru. Bru. O Antony! Beg not your Death of us:
Though now we must appear bloody and cruel,
As, by our Hands, and this our present Act,
You see we do; yet see you but our Hands,
And this, the bleeding Business they have done.
Our Hearts you see not, they are pitiful;
And pity to the general wrong of Rome,
As Fire drives out Fire, so Pity, Pity,
Hath done this deed on Casar. For your part,
To you, our Swords have leaden Points, Mark Antony,
Our Arms in strength of Malice, and our Hearts
Of Brothers temper, do receive you in,
With all kind Love, good Thoughts and Reverence.

Cas. Your Voice shall be as strong as any Man's,

In the disposing of new Dignities.

Bru. Only be patient 'till we have appeas'd The Multitude, befide themselves with fear, And then we will deliver you the Cause, Why I, that did love Casar when I struck him,

Have thus proceeded.

Ant. I doubt not of your Wisdom. Let each Man render me his bloody Hand; First, Marcus Brutus, will I shake with you; Next, Caius Cassius, do I take your Hand; Now Decius Brutus, yours; now yours, Metellus; Yours, Cinna; and my valiant Caka? yours; Though last, not least in love, yours, good Trebonius; Gentlemen all—alas, what shall I say, My Credit now stands on such slippery Ground, That one of two bad ways you must conceit me, Either a Coward, or a Flatterer. That I did love thee, Cafar, O'tis true; If then thy Spirit look upon us now, Shall it not grieve thee dearer than thy Death, To fee thy Antony making his Peace, Shaking the bloody Fingers of thy Foes, Most Noble! in the presence of thy Course? Had I as many Eyes, as thou hast Wounds, Weeping as fast as they stream forth thy Blood, It would become me better, than to close

Cas. I blame you not for praising Casar so, But what compact mean you to have with us? Will you be prick d in number of our Friends, Or shall we on and not depend on you?

Ant. Therefore I took your Hands, but was indeed Sway d from the Point, by looking down on Casar. Friends am I with you all, and love you all, Upon this hope, that you shall give me Reasons, Why, and wherein Casar, was dangerous.

Bru. Or else were this a savage Spectacle. Our Reasons are so full of good regard, That were you Antony the Son of Casar, You should be satisfied.

Ant. That's all I feek;

Bru. Mark Antony here take your Casar's Body;
You shall not in your Funeral Speech blame us,

Bru. Prepare the Body then, and follow us, [Exeunt.

Manet Antony.

Ant. O pardon me, thou bleeding piece of Earth, That I am meek and gentle with these Butchers. Thou art the Ruins of the noblest Man That ever lived in the Tide of Times. Woe to the Hand that shed this costly Blood! Over thy Wounds, now do I prophefie. (Which, like dumb Mouths, do ope their ruby Lips, To beg the voice and utterance of my Tongue) A Curse shall light upon the Limbs of Men; Domestick Fury, and herce civil Strife, Shall cumber all the parts of Italy; Blood and Destruction shall be so in use. And dreadful Objects so familiar, That Mothers shall but smile, when they behold Their Infants quartered with the Hands of War: All Pity choak'd with Custom of fell Deeds, And Cafar's Spirit ranging for Revenge, With Are by his fide, come hot from Hell, Shall in these Confines, with a Monarch's Voice, Cry havock, and let slip the Dogs of War, That this foul Deed shall smell above the Earth With Carrion Men, groaning for burial.

Enter

Enter Octavius's Servant.

You serve Octavius Casar, do you not?

Ser. I do, Mark Antony.

Ant. Cafar did write for him to come to Rome.
Ser. He did receive his Letters, and is coming,
And bid me fay to you by word of Mouth—

O Cafar! Seeing the Body.

Ant. Thy Heart is big, get thee apart and weep; Passion I see is catching, for mine Eyes, Seeing those Beads of Sorrow stand in thine, Began to water. Is thy Master coming?

Ser. He lies to Night within seven Leagues of Rome.

Ant. Post back with speed, and tell him what hath there is a mourning Rome, a dangerous Rome, (chanc'd. No Rome of Safety for Offavius yet;

Hie hence, and tell him so. Yet stay a while,

Thou shalt not back, 'till I have born this Coarse.

Into the Market-place: There shall I try

In my Oration, how the People take.

The cruel issue of these bloody Men;

According to the which, thou shalt discourse

To young Offavius of the state of things.

Lend me your Hand.

[Exeunt mith Casar's Body.—

SCENE II. The Forum.

Enter Brutus, and goes into the Pulpit; and Cassius, with the Plebeians.

Pleb. We will be fatisfied; let us be satisfied.

Bru. Then follow me, and give me Audience, Friends, Cassus, go you into the other Street,

And part the Numbers:

Those that will hear me speak, let'em stay here; Those that will follow Casses go with him,

And publick Reasons shall be rendred

Of Cafar's Death.

I Pleb. I will hear Brutus speak.

2 Pleb. I will hear Cassius, and compare their Reasons, When severally we hear them rendered.

[Exeunt Cassius, with some of the Plebeians. 2 Pleb.

3 Pleb. The Noble Brutus is afcended: Silence.

Bru. Be Patient till the last.

Romans, Country-men, and Lovers, hear me for my Cause, and be filent, that you may hear. Believe me for mine Honour, and have respect to mine Honour, that you may believe. Censure me in your Wisdom, and awake your Senses, that you may the better judge. If there be any in this Assembly, any dear Friend of Casar's, to them I say, that Brutus love to Cafar was no less than his. If then, that Friend demand, why Brutus role against Cafar, this is my Answer: Not that I lov'd Casar less, but that I lov'd Rome more. Had you rather Cafar were living, and die all Slaves; than that Cafar were dead, to live all Free-men? As Cafar lov'd me, I weep for him; as he was Fortunate, I rejoyce at it; as he was Valiant, I honour him; but as he was Ambitious, I flew him. There is Tears for his Love, Joy for his Fortune, Honour for his Valour, and Death for his Ambition. Who is here fo base that would be a Bond-man? If any, speak; for him have I offended. Who ishere fo rude, that would not be a Roman? If any, speak; for him have I offended. Who is here so vile, that will not love his Country? If any, speak; for him have I offended, —I pause for a Reply— All. None, Brutus, none.

Bru. Then none have I offended. I have done no more to Casar than you shall do to Brutus. The Question of his Death is inroll'd in the Capitol; his Glory not extenuated, wherein he was worthy; nor his Offences enforc'd, for which he suffered Death.

Enter Mark Antony with Cafar's Body.

Here comes his Body, mourn'd by Mark Antony: who though he had no hand in his Death, shall receive the Benefit of his dying, a Place in the Commonwealth; as which of you shall not? With this I depart, That as I slew my best Lover for the good of Rome. I have the same Dagger for my self, when it shall please my Country to need my Death.

All. Live. Brutus, live, live.

I Pleb. Peace, Ho!

Bru. Good Countrymen, let me depart alone, And for my fake, flay here with Antony; Do grace to Calar's Corps, and grace his Speech Tending to Cafar's Glories, which Mark Antony, By our Permission, is allow'd to make. I do intreat you, not a Man depart, Exit. Save I alone, 'till Antony have spoke.

I Pleb. Stay, Ho, and let us hear Mark Antony. 3 Pleb. Let him go up into the publick Chair,

We'll hear him: Noble Antony, go up.

Ant. For Brutus fake I am beholden to you.

4. Pleb. What does he fay of Brutus?

2 Pleb. He says, for Brutus's sake He finds himfelf beholden to us all.

4 Pleb. 'Twere best he speak no harm of Brusus here.'
I Pleb. This Casar was a Tyrant.

3 Pleb. Nay, that's certain;

We are glad that Rome is rid of him.

z Pleb. Peace, let us hear what Antony can fay.

Ant. You gentle Romans-All. Peace, Ho, let us hear him.

Ant. Friends, Romans, Countrymen, lend me your Ears; I come to bury Cafar, not to praise him. The evil that Men do, lives after them, The Good is oft interred with their Bones; So let it be with Calar. The noble Brusus Hath told you. Cafar was ambitious; If it were fo, it was a grievous Fault, And grievously hath Cafer answer'd it. Here, under leave of Brutus, and the rest, (For Brutus is an honourable Man,

So are they all, all honourable Men) Come I to speak in Casar's Funeral. He was my Friend, faithful and just to me; But Brutus fays, He was ambitious; And Brutus is an honourable Man. He hath brought many Captives home to Rome. Whose Ransoms did the general Coffers fill; Did this in Cafar feem ambitious? When that the poor have cry'd, Cafar hath wept; Ambition should be made of sterner Stuff: Yet Brutus fays. He was ambitious. And Brutus is an honourable Man. You all did fee, that on the Lupercal, I thrice presented him a Kingly Crown, Which he did thrice refuse. Was this Ambition? Yet Brutus fays, He was ambitious, And fure he is an honourable Man. I speak not to disprove what Brutus spoke, But here I am to speak what I do know. You all did love him once, not without Caufe, What Cause with-holds you then to mourn for him? O Judgment! thou art fled to brutish Beasts, And Men have lost the Reason-Bear with me, My Heart is in the Coffin there with Cafar, And I must pause 'till it come back to me.

1 Pleb. Methinks there is much Reason in his Sayings.

If thou confider rightly of the Matter,

Cæsar has had great Wrong. (in his Place.

3 Pleb. There's not a nobler Man in Rome than Antony.

And none so poor to do him Reverence.

I should do Brutus Wrong, and Cassius Wrong; Who, you all know, are honourable Men. I will not do them Wrong: I rather chuse To wrong the Dead, to wrong my self and you? Than I will wrong such honourable Men. But here's a Parchment, with the Seal of Casar, I found it in his Closet, 'tis his Will, Let but the Commons hear this Testament, Which, pardon me, I do not mean to Read, And they would go and kiss dead Casar's Wounds, And dip their Napkins in his facred Blood; Yea, beg a Hair of him for Memory, And dying, mention it within their Wills, Bequeathing it as a rich Legacy Unto their Issue.

4 Pleb. We'll hear the Will, read it Mark Antony.

All. The Will, the Will; we will hear Cafar's Will.

Ant. Have Patience, gentle Friends, I must not read it.

It is not meet you know how Cafar lov'd you.

You are not Wood, you are not Stones, but Men:

And being Men, hearing the Will of Cafar,

It will inflame you, it will make you mad;

'Tis good you know not that you are his Heirs,'

For if you should—O what would come of it!

4 Pleb. Read the Will; we'll hear it, Antony:

You shall read us the Will, Cafar's Will.

Ant. Will you be patient? will you stay a while? I have o'ershot my self to tell you of it. I fear I wrong the honourable Men, Whose Daggers have stabb'd Casar—I do fear it.

4 Pleb. They were Traitors—honourable Men!

All. The Will! the Testament!

2 Pleb. They were Villains, Murderers; the Will! read the Will!

Ant. You will compel me then to read the Will:
Then make a Ring about the Corps of Cafar.
And let me shew you him that made the Will.
Shall I descend? and will you give me Leave.

All. Come down. [He comes down from the Pulgit.]

2 Pleb. Descend.

3 Pleb.

Ad III.

3 Pleb. You shall have Leave. 4 Pleb. A Ring, stand round.

I Pleb. Stand from the Hearse, stand from the Body.

2 Pleb. Room for Antony—most noble Antony!
Ant. Nay press not so upon me, stand far off.

All. Stand back—room—bear back—

Ant. If you have Tears, prepare to shed them now. You all do know this Mantle, I remember

The first Time ever Cafar put it on,

'Twas on a Summer's Evening in his Tent.

That Day he overcame the Nervii———
Look! in this Place, ran Cassius's Dagger throughSee what a Kent the envious Cassa made——

Through this, the well beloved Brutus stabb'd, And as he pluck'd his curfed Steel away,

Mark how the Blood of Casar follow'd it—

As rushing out of Doors, to be resolv'd,

If Brutus fo unkindly knock'd, or no. For Brutus, as you know, was Cafar's Angel.

Judge, O you Gods! how dearly Cafar lov'd him!

This was the most unkindest Cut of all; For when the Noble Casar saw him stab,

Ingratitude, more strong than Traitors Arms, Ouite vanquish'd him; then burst his mighty Heart:

And in his Mantle muffling up his Face,

Even at the Base of Pompey's Statue,

Which all the while ran Blood, great Cafar fell.

O what a Fall was there, my Countrymen! Then I, and you, and all of us fell down.

Whilst bloody Treason flourish'd over us.

O, now you weep, and I perceive you feel. The Dint of Pity; these are gracious Drops.

Kind Souls! what weep you, when you but behold

Our Casar's Vesture wounded? Look you here, Here is himself, marr'd as you see with Traitors.

I Pleb. O piteous Spectacle!

2 We'll hear him, we'll follow him, we'll dye with him.

Ant. Good Friends, sweet Friends, let me not stir you up

To fuch a fudden Flood of Mutiny: They that have done this Deed, are Honourable; What private Griefs they have, alas, I know not, That made them do it; they are Wise and Honourable; And will no doubt with Reasons answer you, I come not, Friends, to steal away your Hearts; I am no Orator, as Brutus is; But, as you know me all, a plain blunt Man, That love my Friend, and that they know full well; That give me publick leave to speak of him: For I have neither Wit, nor Words, nor Worth; Action nor Utterance, nor the Power of Speech, To stir Mens Blood; I only speak right on. I tell you that, which you your felves do know, Shew you fweet Cafar's Wounds, poor, poor dumb Mouths. And bid them speak for me; but were I Brutus, And Brutus Antony, there were an Antony Wou'd ruffle up your Spirits, and put a Tongue In every Wound of Cafar, that should move The Stones of Rome to rife in Mutiny.

Alas you know not; I must tell you then: You have forgot the Will I told you of.

All. Most true—the Will—let's stay and hear the Will.

TULIUS CESAR. Ad III. 46 Ant. Here is the Will, and under Cafar's Seal. To every Roman Citizen he gives, To every feveral Man, feventy five Drachma's. 2 Pleb. Most noble Casar! we'll revenge his Death. 3 Pleb. O Royal Cafar! Ant. Hear Me with Patience. All. Peace ho! Ant. Moreover, he hath left you all his Walks. Off. Prick him down Antony.

Lep. Upon Condition Publius shall not live,

Who is your Sifter's Son, Mark Antony.

Ant. He shall not live; look, with a Spot, I damn him. But Lepidus, go you to Cæsar's House; Fetch the Will hither, and we shall determine How to cut off some Charge in Legacies.

Lep. What ? shall I find you here ?

Off. Or here, or at the Capitol. . [Exit Lepidus.

Ant. This is a slight unmeritable Man, Meet to be sent on Errands: Is it sit, The three fold World divided, he should stand One of the three to share it;

Off. So you thought him,

And took his Voice, who should be prickt to die,

Luc. Give the Word, ho! and fland!

Bru. What now, Lucilius? is Cassius near?

There are no tricks in plain and simple Faith:
But hollow Men, like Horses hot at Hand,
Make gallant show, and promise of their Mettle.

Nor with fuch free and friendly Conference.

But when they should endure the bloody Spur, They fall their Crests, and like deceitful Jades,

Luc. They mean this Night in Sardis to be quarter'd;
The greater Part, the Horse in general,

And when you do them -

Bru. Cassius, be content.

Cas. Chastisement!

Bru. Remember March, the Ides of March remember; Did not great Julius bleed for Justice sake? What Villain touch'd his Body, that did stab, And not for Justice? What, shall one of Us, That struck the foremost Man of all this World, But for supporting Robbers, shall we now Contaminate our Fingers, with base Bribes? And sell the mighty space of our large Honours For so much trash, as may be grasped thus? I had rather be a Dog, and bait the Moon, Than such a Roman.

Cas. Brutus, bait not me, I'll not endure it; you forget your self, To hedge me in. I am a Soldier, I, Older in Practice, abler than your self To make Conditions.

Bru. Go to; you are not Caffius.

Cas. I am.

Bru. I say, you are not.

Cas. Urge me no more, I shall forget my self— Have mind upon your Health—Tempt me no farther.

Bru. Away, flight Man. Cas. Is't possible?

Bru. Hear me, for I will speak.

Must I give way, and room to your rash Choler? Shall I be frighted, when a Madman stares?

Cas. O ye Gods! ye Gods! must I endure all this?

Bru. All this! Ay more. Fret 'till your proud Heart break,

Go shew your Slaves how Cholerick you are,
And make your Bondmen tremble. Must I budge?
Must I observe you; must I stand and crouch
Under your testy Humour? By the Gods
You shall digest the Venom of your Spleen,
Tho it do split you. For from this Day forth,
I'll use you for my Mirth, yea, for my Laughter,
When you are waspish.

Cal. Is it come to this?

Bru. You say, you are a better Soldier; Let it appear so; make your vaunting true, And it shall please me well. For mine own part, I shall be glad to learn of noble Men.

Cas. You wrong me every way — You wrong me, Brutus;

I said, an Elder Soldier not a Better.

Did I say Better

Bru. If you did, I care not.

Cas. When Casar liv'd, he durst not thus have mov'd me. Bru. Peace, peace, you durst not so have tempted him.

Cas. 1 durst not! -

Bru. No.

Cas. What? durst not tempt him! Bru. For your Life you durst not.

Caf. Do not presume too much upon my Love,

I may do that I shall be forry for.

Bru. You have done that you should be forry for. There is no Terror, Cassius, in your Threats,

For I am arm'd fo ftrong in honesty. That they pass by me, as the idle Wind, Which I respect not. I did send to you For certain Sums of Gold, which you deny'd me; For I can raise no Money by vile Means. By Heaven, I had rather coin my Heart, And drop my Blood for Drachma's, than to wring From the hard Hands of Peasants, their vile Trash By any Indirection. I did fend To you for Gold to pay my Legions, Which you deny'd me; was that done like Cassius? Should I have answered Caius Cassius fo? When Marcus Brutus grows fo covetous, To lock fuch Rascal Counters from his Friends, Be ready Gods with all your Thunder-bolts, Dash him to Pieces.

Caf. I deny'd you not.

Bru. You did.

But Brutus makes mine greater than they are.

Bru. I do not 'till you practife them on me.

Cas. You love me not.

Bru. I do not like your Faults.

Cas. A friendly Eye could never see such Faults.

Bru. A Flatterer's would not, tho' they do appear

As huge as high Olympus.

Cas. Come Antony, and young Octavius come, Revenge your selves alone on Cassius, For Cassius is a weary of the World; Hated by one he loves, brav'd by his Brother, Check'd like a Bondman, all his Faults observ'd, Set in a Note-Book, learn'd, and conn'd by rote, To cast into my Teeth. O I could weep My Spirit from mine Eyes! There is my Dagger, And here my naked Breast. — Within, a Heart Dearer than Pluto's Mine, richer than Gold; If that thou beest a Roman take it forth.

I that deny'd thee Gold, will give my Heart;

Strike as thou didst at Casar, for I know, When thou didst hate him worst, thou lov'dst him better. Than ever thou lov'dst Cassius.

Bru. Sheath your Dagger;

Be angry when you will, it shall have scope,
Do what you will, Dishonour shall be Humour.
O, Cassius, you are yoaked with a Lamb,
That carries Anger as the Flint bears Fire,
Who much inforced, shews a hasty Spark,
And straight is cold again.

Caf. Hath Cassius liv'd

To be but Mirth and Laughter to his Brutus, When Grief and Blood ill-temper'd vexeth him? Bru. When I spoke that, I was ill temper'd too.

Cas. O Brutus !

Bru. What's the Matter?

When that rash Humour which my Mother gave me-Makes me forgetful?

Bru. Yes, Cassius, and from henceforth When you are over-earnest with your Brutus, He'll think your Mother chides, and leave you so.

Enter Lucius and Titinius, and a Poet.

Poet: Let me go in to see the Generals, There is some grudge between 'em, 'tis not meet They be alone.

Luc. You shall not come to them, Poet. Nothing but Death shall stay me. Cas. How now? What's the Matter?

Poet. For shame, you Generals, what do you mean? Love, and be friends, as Two such Men should be, For I have seen more Years I'm sure than ye.

Caf. Ha, ha — how vilely doth this Cynick Rhime!

Bru. Get you hence, Sirrah; fawcy Fellow, hence.

Cas. Bear with him, Brutus, 'tis his Fashion.

Bru. I'll know his Humour, when he knows his Time;
What should the Wars do with these jigging Fools?

Companion, hence.

Caf.

Caf. Away, away, be gone: [Exit Poet. Bru. Lucilius, and Titinius, bid the Commanders

Prepare to lodge their Companies to Night.

Caf. And come your selves, and bring Messala with you Immediately to us. [Exeunt Lucilius and Titinius

Bru. Lucius, a Bowl of Wine.

Caf. I did not think you could have been so angry.

Bru. O Cassius, I am fick of many Griefs.

Cas. Of your Philosophy you make no use,

If you give place to accidental Evils.

Bru. No Man bears Sorrow better-Portia is dead.

Caf. Ha! Portia!

Bru. She is dead.

Cas. How scap'd I killing, when I crost you so?
O insupportable and rouching Loss!

Upon what Sickness?

Bru. Impatient of my absence;
And Grief, that young Octavius with Mark Antony,
Have made themselves so strong: For with her Death.
That tydings come. With this she fell distract,
And (her Attendants absent) swallow'd Fire.

Cas. And dy'd so?
Bru. Even so.

Cal. O ye immortal Gods!

Enter Boy with Wine and Tapers,

Bru. Speak no more of her: Give me a Bowl of Wine. In this I bury all unkindness, Cassius. [Drinks.

Cas. My Heart is thirsty for that noble Pledge. Fill, Lucius, 'till the Wine o'er-swell the Cup; I cannot drink too much of Brutus Love.

Enter Titinius, and Messala.

Bru. Come in, Titinius; welcome, good Meffala:

Now fit we close about this Taper here, And call in question our Necessities.

Caf. Portia! art thou gone?

Bru. No more, I pray you.

Messala, I have here received Letters,
That young Offavius, and Mark Antony,
Come down upon us with a mighty Power,

Bending their Expedition toward Philippi.

Mef. My self have Letters of the self-same tenure Bru. With what Addition?

Mes. That by Proscription, and Bills of Outlawry, Octavius, Antony, and Lepidus,

Have put to Death an hundred Senators.

Bru. Therein our Letters do not well agree; Mine speak of seventy Senators, that dy'd By their Profcriptions, Cicero being one.

Cal. Cicero one ?-

Mef. Cicero is dead; and by that order of Proscription. Had you your Letters from your Wife, my Lord? Bru. No, Messala.

Mef. Nor nothing in your Letters writ of her?

Bru. Nothing Messala. Mes. That, methinks, is strange.

Bru. Why ask you? hear you ought of her, in yours?

Mes. No, my Lord.

Bru. Now as you are a Roman, tell me true. Mef. Then like a Roman, bear the Truth I tell, For certain the is dead, and by strange manner.

Bru. Why, farewel, Portia-we must die, Messala.

With meditating that she must die once, I have the patience to endure it now.

Mes. Even so great Men, great Losses should endure.

Cal. I have as much of this in Art as you,

But yet my Nature could not bear it fo. Bru. Well, to our Work alive. What do you think

Of marching to Philippi presently. Cal. I do not think it good.

Bru. Your Reason? Caf. This it is:

'Tis better that the Enemy feek us, So shall he waste his means, weary his Soldiers, Doing himself Offence, whilst we lying still,

Are full of rest, defence and nimbleness.

Bru. Good Reasons must of force give place to better. The People 'twixt Philippi, and this Ground, Do stand but in a forc'd Affection; For they have grudg'd us Contribution. The Enemy marching along by them,

By them shall make a fuller number up, Come on refresht, new added, and encourag'd; From which Advantage shall we cut him off, If at Philippi we do face him there, These People at our back.

Cas. Hear me, good Brother

Bru. Under your Pardon. You must note beside, That we have try'd the utmost of our Friends; Our Legions are brim full, our Cause is ripe, The Enemy encreaseth every Day, We at the height, are ready to decline. There is a Tide in the Assairs of Men, Which taken at the Flood, leads on to Fortune; Omitted, all the Voyage of their Life, Is bound in Shallows, and in Miseries. On such a full Sea, are we now a-float, And we must take the Current when it serves, Or lose our Ventures.

Cas. Then with your will go on; we will along

Our felves, and meet them at Philippi.

Bru. The deep of Night is crept upon our Talk, And Nature must obey necessity, Which we will niggard with a little Rest; There is no more to say.

Early to Morrow we will rife, and hence.

Enter Lucius.

Bru. Lucius, my Gown; farewel, good Messala, Good Night, Titinius: Noble, Noble Cassius,

Good Night, and good Repose.

Cas. O my dear Brother!
This was an ill beginning of the Night,
Never come such Divisions 'tween our Souls;
Let it not, Brutus.

Enter Lucius with the Gown.

Bru. Every thing is well.
Cas. Good Night, my Lord.
Bru. Good Night, good Brother.

Enter the Ghoft of Cafar.

How ill this Taper burns! Ha! Who comes here? I think it is the weakness of mine Eyes, That shapes this monstrous Apparition. It comes upon me; Art thou any thing? Art thou some God, some Angel or some Devil, That mak'ft my Blood cold. and my Hair to stare? Speak to me, what thou art?

Ghoft. Thy evil Spirit, Brutus,

Bru. Why com'ft thou?

Ghoft. To tell thee thou shalt see me at Philippi.

Offa. Stir not until the Signal.

Bru. Words before Blows; is it so, Countrymen? Offa. Not that we love Words better, as you do.

Bru. Good Words are better than bad Strokes, Octavius Ant. In your bad Strokes, Brutus, you give good Words.

Witness the hole you made in Casar's Heart,

Crying, Long live, hail Cafar.

Cas. Antony,

The posture of your Blows are yet unknown; But for your Words, they rob the Hibla Bees, And leave them Honey-less.

Ant. Not stingless too.

Bru. O yes, and foundless too;

For you have stoln their buzzing Antony, And very wifely threat before you sting.

Ant. Villains! you did not so, when your vile Daggers Hack'd one another in the sides of Casar. (Hounds, You shew'd your Teeth like Apes, and fawn'd like And bow'd like Bond-men, kissing Casar's Feet; Whilst damned Caska, like a Cur, behind

Lovers

Lovers in Peace, lead on our Days to Age. But fince the Affairs of Men rest still uncertain. Let's reason with the worst that may befal. If we do lofe this Battel, then is this The very last Time we shall speak together? What are you then determined to do?

Bru. Even by the Rule of that Philosophy, By which I did blame Cato, for the Death Which he did give himfelf, I know not how; But I do find it cowardly, and vile, For fear of what might fall, so to prevent The Time of Life, arming my felf with Patience, To stay the Providence of some high Powers, That govern us below.

Cal. Then if we lofe this Battel, You are contented to be led in Triumph,

Through the Streets of Rome.

Bru. No, Cassius, no; think not, thou noble Roman That ever Brutus will go bound to Rome, He bears too great a Mind. But this same Day Must end that Work, the Ides of March begun. And whether we shall meet again, I know not; Therefore our everlasting Farewel take; For ever, and for ever, farewel, Caffius; If we do meet again, why, we shall smile: If not, why then, this parting was well made. Cal. For ever, and for ever, farewel, Brutus; If we do meet again, we'll fmile indeed;

If not, 'tis true, this parting was well made. Bru. Why then lead on. O that a Man might know The End of this Day's Bufiness, 'ere it come; But it sufficeth, that the Day will and, And then the End is known. Come ho, away. [Exeunt.

Alarum. Enter Brutus and Meffala. Bru. Ride, ride, Meffala, ride and give these Bills Unto the Legions, on the other Side [Loud Alarum. Let them fet on at once; for I perceive But cold Demeanor in Offavio's Wing; And fudden Push gives them the Overthrow. Exeunt. Ride, ride, Messala, let them all come down. Alarums.

Tit. They are, my Lord.

Cas. Titinus, if thou lovest me,

Mount thou my Horse, and hide thy Spurs in him,

Till he hath brought thee up to yonder Troops.

And here again, that I may rest assur'd, Whether youd Troops are Friend or Enemy.

Tit. I will be here again, even with a Thought, [Exit. Cas. Go, Pindarus, get thither on that Hill, My Sight was ever thick; regard Titinius,

And tell me what thou not ft about the field.

And tell me what thou not'st about the Field.
This Day I breathed first, Time is come round,
And where I did begin, there shall I end,

My Life is run his Compass. Sirrah, what News?

Pind. Titinius is enclosed round about
With Horsemen, that make to him on the Spur,
Yet he spurs on. Now they are almost on him;
Now Titinius! Now some light—O he lights too—
He's ta'en—

Durst I have done my Will. O Cassius,

Far from this Country Pindarus shall run, Where never Roman shall take Note of him.

Enter Tintinius and Messala.

Mef. It is but change, Titinius; for Octavius Is overthrown by Noble Brutus Power,

As Cassius Legions are by Antony.

Tit. Theie Tidings will well comfort Cassius.

Mes. Where did you leave him?

Tit. All disconsolate,

With Pindarus his Bondman, on this Hill.

Mes. Is not that he that lyes upon the Ground? Tit. He lyes not like the Living. O my Heart!

Mef. Is not that he?

Tit. No, this was he, Meffala,

But Cassius is no more. O setting Sun! As in thy red Rays thou dost fink to Night,

So in his red Blood Cassius Day is set;

The Sun of Rome is fet. Our Day is gone,

Clouds, Dews, and Dangers come; our Deeds are done;

Mistrust of my Success hath done this Deed.

Mef. Mistrust of good Success hath done this Deed.

O hateful Error, Melancholy's Child!

Why dost thou shew to the apt Thoughts of Men, The Things that are not? O Error soon conceiv'd;

Thou never com'st unto a happy Birth, But kill'st the Mother that engender'd thee.

Tit. What Pindarus! Where art thou, Pindarus?

Mef.

Shall be as welcome to the Ears of Brutus.

As Tydings of this Sight.

Tit. Hye you, Messala,

And I will seek for Pindarus the while:

Why didst thou fend me forth, brave Cassius!

Thy Brutus bid me give it thee, and I

Will do his bidding. Brutus come apace,

And see how I regarded Caius Cassius.

By your Leave, Gods—This is a Roman's Part.

Come Caffius Sword, and find Titinius Heart. [Dies. Alarum. Enter Brutus, Messala, young Cato, Strato, Volumnius, and Lucilius.

Bru. Where, where Messata, doth his Body lye?
Mes. Lo yonder, and Titinius mourning it.

Bru. Titinius Face is upward. Cato. He is flain.

Bru. O Julius Casar, thou art mighty yet,
Thy Spirit walks abroad, and turns our Swords
In our own proper Entrails.

[Low Alarums.

Cato. Brave Titinius!

Look where he have not crown'd dead Cassius.

Bru. Are yet two Romans living such as these?

Thou last of all the Romans, fare thee well;

It is impossible that ever Rome

Should breed thy Fellow. Friends, I owe more Tears

Luc. Safe Antony, Brutus is safe enough.

I dare assure thee, that no Enemy
Shall ever take alive the noble Brutus:
The Gods defend him from so great a Shame.
When you do find him or alive, or dead,
He will be found like Brutus, like himself.

Ant. This is not Brutus, Friend, but I assure you, A Prize no less in Worth; keep this Man safe, Give him all Kindness. I had rather have Such Men my Friends, than Enemies. Go on, And see where Brutus be alive or dead, And bring us Word unto Oflavius Tent.
